Abbeville Boy Writes of Oklahoma.

Twenty years ago when I traveled westward for a distance of twelve hundred miles, you would then have found yourself in a broad prairie land, known as the Cheyenne country of Oklahoma, with very few signs of white men, and should you see a white man at all, he would be a ranchman or cowboy and some of these would look upon a stranger with suspicion, while others would take you in and share their last crumb with you.

But in twenty years this country has undergone a vast change for the better. Uncle Sam has taken hold and these lands are surveyed from north to south, and east to west, and then they were cut into sections. A section being 36 acres, and a quarter section is 9 acres which was each man's share when the lands were declared open to homesteaders. Then the rush came. People from every where came to get a claim, some for speculation, while others came for a home. Should the country have a future they meant to reap the benefit of it, and those who remained who remained were the star-winners. This country did have a future and a grand one for this land today sells on an average of $50 per acre, while some of those who become disheartened are renters in this Cheyenne country today, one man in particular I recall to mind, sold his claim for a few of fire water and left Oklahoma on a high lonesome, and now the owner has refused $10,000 for same, while the gentleman in question is an Indian lease.

Now back to territorial days. The people when settling this country, not being financially able to build houses, were forced to make what is known as the dug-out, or in other words a hole in the ground, covered over with cotton wood limbs and then a layer of dirt, but as the years have passed, and each bringing a grand harvest, they have erected nice dwellings in the dug-outs instead, and where the cattle and horses once were exposed to the blizzards, a large barn is there to shelter them, and what a few years since was a grassy common now is in a fine state of cultivation, beautiful orchards and "yards" are in the place once occupied by the cactus and prickly pears. The automobiles are the principle mode of conveyance. Rural telephones have been put in by every one. The people, as a rule, are of an energetic and progressive nature. Anything new in the farm world, if practical, is adopted, and now they employ the most scientific methods for farming, and the lands being of a nature that will permit, they naturally make use of the latest improved farm implements. No one walks and plows, for all implements are made with seats, still some are not satisfied, for in the month of July when old Sol smiles too bright, they bring their plow shades into service, with this, one is in the shade all the time.

The soil in the Cheyenne is on an average six feet deep and very fertile. Fertilizer is not known. The land being of a nature that will not permit. The staple crops are cotton, corn, wheat, oats, alfalfa and some broom corn. In late years they have gone to pulling the cotton bolls instead of picking it. They have machinery in the gins to extract the cotton from the bolls, and 2000 pounds of bolls will give one a bale weighing 500 pounds, hence farm life in that country is becoming more of a pleasure than a drudgery.

Now for the Indian, some seem to think the red man is dead, and as the negro has been far from it, for the Indians draw the line when work is the topic. Well, in reality they don't have to work, for they have one of the uncies, his name is "Uncle Sam," and just bet your life the Indians never ask a favor of him, without it being granted. They are sent away at a very young age to school, and remain there until they have received a finished education, then they are permitted to return, and instead of making use of their qualifications, they beat it for some winding prairie stream and don a blanket of many colors, and there they lounge in the shade of the cotton wood trees, and pick up the bones of the dead, and take the life of the living. While out on their lands, which is cultivated by the pale-face, natives one best bet, cotton is growing to a height of five feet and fruiting from top to bottom. Mr. Indian is aware of this fact too, for the fleecy lint from same is sold, it is the gate way for his further idleness.

Should one walk out across those prairie fields in the month of June, after night fall and see some tiny lights in the distance, which greatly resembled fireflies, you should know fast enough that it is the reapers, for they harvest at times through the night, and should you be with the reapers through the night, I don't think you would become sleepy for there is a kind of fascination about it which seems to stimulate one, and in the small hours of the morning, when the coyote yelps his last before retiring to his den, same seems to give tone to the reapers and to take the life, it has a tendency to make one realize more clearly than ever, life in western Oklahoma is grand. Clyde Murchison.

Columbia, S. C. Feb. 9.—Gen. He has made no official announcement yet it is practically certain that he will resign. Gen. Jones served for 16 years as secretary of the State executive committee before his election to the chairmanship and has attended several national conventions as a delegate at large, serving the party at considerable personal expense.

THE PARDON RECORD

Columbia, February 6.—The use of the pardon power by the governor of South Carolina is reflected in the annual report of the directors of the penitentiary, which was sent to the general assembly today by D. J. Griffith, the superintendent. The report shows that the population of the penitentiary at the end of 1910 was 935, and that it was 806 at the end of the last year. The governor, during last year, extended executive clemency in approximately 330 cases. Of this number 145 were liberated from the penitentiary, while the others were released from the county chain-gangs and police courts. As to the health of the prisoners, Dr. R. T. Jennings makes the following report: "We have had 13 deaths from tuberculosis. The records show that nine of this number came from the different county chain-gangs in a critical condition. There are now only four patients confined in the tubercular hospital. Their general condition is good with the exception of one. Every precaution is used to prevent the spread of disease."

REASONS FOR IMMUNITY

Persons outside of the state were given immunity because they gave evidence of the bribes and conspiracies because they could not sell their liquors without paying the officers of the state rebates or bribe money, which was demanded of them, and because they were not officers of the state, who had taken oath to keep a trust reposed in them. The officers of the State as far as possible were prosecuted, because they had betrayed the trust reposed in them by defrauding the people of the state, whose interests they were specially commissioned to protect. I do not deem it necessary to refer to all of the misleading statements of the governor with reference to this case. Still, I think your honorable body should have the information, in order that you may not be misled by the governor's statement.

Estate of Mrs. Isabella H. Bonner, Deceased.

Notice of Settlement and Application for Final Discharge.

Take notice that on the 29th day of Feb. 1912, I will render a final account of my settlements and disburse as Administrator of the Estate of Mrs. Isabella H. Bonner, deceased, to the office of Judge of Probate for Abbeville County at 1 o'clock a.m., and on the same day will apply for a final discharge from my trust as such Administrator.

LYON SHOWS FACTS

Replies to Blease's Statement of Pardons

Columbia, Feb. 10.—Attorney General J. Fraser Lyon has sent to the general assembly his reply to Blease's statement to the senate, transmitted to that body Thursday night, in defense of Blease's pardoning of John Black, who was convicted of conspiracy to defraud the state in connection with old dispensary affairs.

Blease's statement was published in the press some time ago, but the attorney general who was in fact out of the city, took no notice of it at the time, as it was not official.

Soon after the house convened Saturday, Dr. Olin Sawyer, a representative from Georgetown, moved to reconsider the vote whereby the house last night had ordered printed in the permanent journal he message from Attorney General Lyon in regard to the pardoning of Major John Black.

Dr. Sawyer said he saw no use for printing in the permanent journal communications of this kind; that before long every one who had had a difference of opinion with the governor, including the magistrates and magistrates' constables would be writing to the general assembly and asking that they be printed in the permanent journal and he thought it was time to draw the line somewhere.

Mr. Dobson moved to table this motion and the motion to table was carried by a heavy majority, no division vote being asked by the minority who supported Mr. Sawyer's motion.

MR. LYON'S STATEMENT

Mr. Lyon's statement is quite lengthy and emphatic. The opening and closing paragraphs are as follows:

Inasmuch as the governor, in attempting justification for exercising executive clemency to John Black, convicted by a jury of Chester county, for conspiring to defraud the state, undertakes to reflect upon me as an officer, as well as personally, I deem it proper to submit this, an additional report in order that your records may carry a correction of these statements and insinuations of the governor, which have no foundation in fact. In one sentence of the governor's report he says:

"After reading carefully the testimony given in this case and the charge delivered by the attorney presiding as special judge, in my opinion John Black should have been acquitted," and in another, "If the jury had convicted all I would not have interfered."

If both of these statements are true the governor would have allowed three to be unjustly punished. Still he was not willing to see only one unjustly punished. Directing your attention to these statements, which are manifestly irreconcilable, with justice, may be considered sufficient to show the real character of all the reasons assigned. But I think it well to further inform your honorable body upon this subject, after stating the fact that the evidence against Black was decidedly stronger than against the other two defendants with whom he was tried, because the checks which he received in consummation of the conspiracy to defraud the state, one of which was for $5,000, with his signature thereon, were evidence of the bribes and conclusive as the bank notes, which showed the actual receipt of the graft money.

REASONS FOR IMMUNITY

Persons outside of the state were given immunity because they gave evidence of the bribes and conspiracies because they could not sell their liquors without paying the officers of the state rebates or bribe money, which was demanded of them, and because they were not officers of the state, who had taken oath to keep a trust reposed in them. The officers of the State as far as possible were prosecuted, because they had betrayed the trust reposed in them by defrauding the people of the state, whose interests they were specially commissioned to protect.

I do not deem it necessary to refer to all of the misleading statements of the governor with reference to this case. Still, I think your honorable body should have the information, in order that you may not be misled by the governor's statement.

FOLK QUITS RACE

Asks the Support of His Friends for Clark

Washington, D. C. Feb. 10.—Senator Reed, of Missouri, today gave out a statement to the effect that ex-Gov. Joseph W. Folk, of Missouri, has withdrawn from the race for the Democratic presidential nomination in favor of Speaker Champ Clark. The compromise in Missouri, it is stated, is the result of efforts of William J. Bryan and has been made in the interest of party harmony in the state.

It is followed by a letter from Speaker Clark, agreeing to accept a proposition originally advanced by Bryan that Clark and Folk agree to a division of the Missouri delegation to the national convention at Baltimore. When the suggestion was first made by Bryan, Clark declined to consider it, but subsequently, on the advice of friends, he communicated to Governor Folk his willingness to divide the Missouri delegation.

Following this letter, Governor Folk issued a statement, which was today given out by Senator Reed, in which Folk yields all his claims and requests his friends to support Mr. Clark for the presidential nomination.

Bryan an Evil Genius; Taft is Pussy-Footed

Taft campaign headquarters will be opened here on Monday or Tuesday and will be known as the National Taft Bureau.

Representative McKinley, of Illinois, chairman of the Republican congressional committee and recently selected as pre-convention manager of the Taft campaign, made the announcement today after a conference with Secretary Hill.

The headquarters will be in a downtown hotel.

"Commoner" Gets His on Floor of the House

"An evil genius hovering on the flanks of Democracy," was the way William J. Bryan was characterized by Congressman Dies, of Texas, during a speech in the house today. Mr. Dies was replying to Mr. Bryan's latest criticism of the Democratic membership of the house. There was cheering from both sides when the Texan declared he "neither feared the power nor respected the judgment of the Commoner."
